A COMPARATIVE STUDY OF THE ADVERBS OF HORACE AND JUVENAL.

INTRODUCTION.

It is the object of this paper to show, in a comparative way, the use of adverbs in the Satires and Epistles of Horace and in Juvenal, and to discuss the various uses of the words singly when such treatment seems desirable. I shall first compare the adverbs as to form and then as to syntax.

The diction and syntax of the Satires and Epistles of Horace offer peculiar difficulties. The language is not that of prose, nor of poetry, nor yet of common life, but a blending of all three. Juvenal's style in turn, while in general nearer the prose norm than that of the average poet, yet at times presents exceedingly unusual positions and constructions. The rhetorical element, too, must be considered constantly.

As regards the vocabulary, it will be found that Horace is much broader than the later satirist, using many adverbs not occurring in Juvenal, whereas the latter employs comparatively few not found in Horace. This is due mainly to two reasons. First, Horace is much freer in the use of rare words, and not infrequently coins new adverbs to suit his purpose. Again, the prose¹ and vulgar element, more especially in the Satires,² in Horace allows words not to be found in poetical or urbane diction. As regards also the number of times the single words occur, Horace's use is larger than that of Juvenal in almost every class of adverbs. Certain adverbs of place are a noteworthy exception—due to the free use of these words by Juvenal to express time and other relations. This usage is commonly in keeping with the general post-Augustan development.

² As regards the difference in the diction of the Satires and Epistles consult Brand, Intersitne aliquid inter Q. Horatii Flacci satiras et ejusdem epistolas, et quid id sit, quaeritur (Czernowitz, 1874).

As far as the syntax of the two authors appears from their use of adverbs, as would naturally be expected, Juvenal is much further removed from the classical prose norm than Horace.

In the course of this comparison surprising differences will be seen in the vocabularies of the two authors in the case of some common words. Thus, eo occurs 9 times in Horace, not once in Juvenal; simul and frustra 27 and 8 times, respectively, in Horace, not once in Juvenal; ita, qui, nimis, tum 23, 15, 6, 15 times, respectively, in Horace, and 4, 0, 1, 3 times, respectively, in Juvenal.

To the contrary, tunc, inde, illic, quotiens, pariter, ibi occur 34, 40, 17, 19, 11, 7 times, respectively, in Juvenal, and 3, 8, 4, 3, 4, 0 times in Horace. Where such a difference exists, I have made an effort to find a substitute of the author using the word the smaller number of times, and why the adverb was avoided, if it was avoided. In the case of several words this effort has been fruitless. Why does Juvenal not use frustra, simul, nimum? What does he use instead of frustra, nimum, qui, prope? Why does Horace totally avoid ibi? What does he use instead of ibi and illic?

In the Satires and Epistles of Horace there are 4071 verses, in Juvenal 3840 verses. The proportion, then, is nearly as 25 : 24.

I.—AS TO FORM.

1. Adverbs in -tim and -sim.

In consideration of the period of the two authors, these adverbs would be expected to be more numerous in H. than in J. (Dr. I 117), but H. uses 11 occurring 18 times, J. 2 occurring 5 times. H. uses: certatim once, confestim once, furtim 5 times, passim twice, paulatim twice, praesertim twice, raptim once, singultim once, tributim once, vicissim once, viritim once.

J. uses: paulatim 4 times, praesertim once. I find no reason for J.'s avoiding furtim, passim, raptim, if he did avoid them. These words occur in contemporary poets. Certatim and *confestim*¹ I find in silver poetry only Luc. 4⁴³⁴ and 4³¹². Singultim appears first H. S. 1. 6⁵⁶, and not again until Appuleius. Tributim S. 2. 1⁶⁹ is ἀπαξ λεγόμενον in poetry. Viritim Ep. 2. 1⁹² occurs elsewhere in poetry only in Plautus and Lucr. 2¹¹⁷³.

¹*Confestim*, occurring several times in Lucretius and Catullus, is rare in the Augustan poets. H. Ep. 1. 12⁹, Verg. A. 9²³¹.

Of this class of adverbs H. uses 18 occurring 109 times, J. 16 occurring 60 times.¹ These forms are in their origin adverbial accusatives. They have, however, the force of adverbs and are to be regarded as such.² The usage is by no means foreign to English, in which language it is poetical and vulgar.³

H. uses: acutum. S. 1. 3²⁶ cur . . . tam cernis acutum. 8¹¹. This word, found several times in Plautus, occurs twice in Terence, Cic. Phil. 12. 11. 26, Verg. A. 9²⁵⁴, Livy 29. 14. 5. aeternum. Ep. 1. 10¹¹ serviet aeternum. This word occurs in Vergil 5 times, Ovid T. 5. 3⁴¹, M. 6⁷⁶⁹, Tac. An. 3. 26, 12. 28, Suet. Tib. 34, and in Statius and Sidonius. certum. S. 2. 5¹⁰⁰ certum vigilans. Cf. Ovid Her. 10⁹ incertum vigilans. S. 2. 6²⁷. decorum. Ep. 1. 7²⁷ dulce loqui . . . ridere decorum. This word appears to be ἀπαξ λεγόμενον here. indoctum. Ep. 2. 2⁹ canet indoctum.

longum. A. P. 459 'succurrite' longum clamet, 'io cives,' i. e. so as to be heard from afar. Wilkins compares μακρὸν αὔσεν Hom. Il. 11. 81.

In J.: aestivum. 14²⁹⁵ aestivum tonat. altum. 1¹⁶ altum dormiret. horrendum. 6¹⁸⁵ intonet horrendum. longum. 6⁶⁵ longum attendit. This adverb occurs Plaut. Ep. 3. 2¹⁰, Ps. 2. 3²¹, Verg. A. 10⁷⁴⁰, Ov. M. 5⁶⁵, Stat. Th. 7²⁰⁰, 10⁴⁶⁷.

rectum. 3¹⁰⁷ si rectum minxit amicus.⁴

3. Adverbs in -orsum.

In H.: dextrorsum. S. 2. 3⁵⁰ dextrorsum abit. introrsum. S. 2. 1⁶⁵ introrsum turpis. Ep. 1. 16¹⁵. quorsum—5 times. retrosum. Ep. 1. 1⁷⁵, 18⁸⁸, ne mutata retrosum te ferat aura. sinistrorsum. S. 2. 3⁵⁰.

J. uses no word of this termination.⁵

The comparative frequency of the occurrence of words of this ending in Plautus, their small use by Cicero and the almost ¹ Only such words are treated below as appear to need comment, because of their being rare.

² Notice H. S. 2. 6²⁷ clare certumque locuto. If multum and nimum have the force of adverbs, these words have.

³ Cf. "monstrous wise," "swift swimming space," and similar expressions.

⁴ For a full discussion of this class of adverbs in Latin consult Reisig N. 555.

⁵ Prorsus, russum and rursus are not counted—the ending being no longer felt in the case of those words.

entire absence of them from his Orations, and their rarity in the best poetry¹ point to their origin in the sermo vulgaris.

4. Adverbs in -cumque.

H. uses: quacumque S. 1. 6³¹, 111.

quandocumque S. 1. 9³³, Ep. 1. 14¹⁷, 16⁵⁸.

quocumque S. 2. 4⁸⁹, Ep. 1. 1¹⁵, A. P. 100.

ubicumque S. 1. 2⁶², Ep. 1. 3³⁴.

J. uses: quocumque 14²⁷⁷. ubicumque 4⁵⁵. utcumque 10²⁷¹.

Where quandocumque might have been employed J. uses a) si quando 3¹⁷³ ipsa . . . colitur si quando theatro maiestas. 12²⁵.

b) quotiens 2¹⁵⁶ Curius quid sentit . . . quotiens hinc talis ad illos umbra venit? 3^{40, 270, 306, 318}, 5^{28, 145}, 6^{67, 180, 535, 642}, 7¹⁷⁹, 9^{51, 111}, 10²⁹, 14²¹.

5. *Adverbs in -ter.*²

Of these H. uses 25 occurring 43 times; J. but 10 occurring 23 times.

The following not used by H. occur in J.: breviter, civiliter, graviter, populariter, violenter. Populariter (3³⁷) occurs five times in Cicero. The only example I find elsewhere is Quint. 12. 9. 2.

Not used by J. and occurring in H. are: acriter, amabiliter, communiter, constanter, convenienter, decenter, fideliter, frugaliter, inaniter, inpariter, insolabiter, largiter, leniter, leviter, loquaciter, mediocriter, patienter, prodigialiter, socialiter, vernilter, and viriliter.

It will be noted that of these 19 words 14 are of more than 3 syllables. The use of these long, and in most cases rare, adverbs is one of the characteristics of the style of the Epistles of H. With the exception of frugaliter,³ communiter,⁴ and vernilter,⁵ they are confined to the Epistles; and, excepting communiter and patienter, occur but once.⁶

¹ In the poets from Catullus to Juvenal I find only H. Od. 1. 34³, 4. 8¹⁶, Epod. 9²⁰, Verg. A. 3⁶⁰⁰, Ov. M. 13⁵³⁸, F. 4⁴⁴⁵, Pers. 5⁵, Luc. 9⁶³², Val. 3²⁶⁸.

² H. Osthoff (Archiv IV, pp. 455-466, reported in the American Journal of Philology X, pp. 484-485) holds these adverbs to be derived from the corresponding adjective + iter. Cf. our straightway.

⁵ S. 2. 6¹⁰⁸.

⁶ I note also the frequency with which adjectives in -ilis and -abilis occur in the Ep. Thus 1. 2²² immersabilis, 2⁴³ volubilis, 18⁷¹ inrevocabilis, 19¹⁷, 20²⁵, 2. 1¹⁰⁰, 2^{132, 179}, A. P. 121, 123, 206, 368, 408. Cf. Waltz, Langue et Metrique d'Horace, p. 67.

Inpariter, insolabiliter, and socialiter were coined by H., and are ἀπαξ λεγόμενα—see Kiessling on Ep. 1. 14⁸ and A. P. 75, Schütz on A. P. 75 and 258, and Dr. I 112. Insolabiliter is a bold formation. Potenter (A. P. 40) is ἀπαξ λεγόμενον in the sense of that passage, and is a very rare word (H. Odes 3. 16⁹, Quint. 12. 10⁷², Val. Max. 1. 1. 1). This word appears to have been coined by H., as was also prodigialiter, another rare word. Verniliter S. 2. 6¹⁰⁸ appears to be ἀπαξ λεγόμενον in the sense in which it is there used, and is rare.

From the above it is seen that there is a broad difference between H. and J. in their use of adverbs in -ter. The statement as to the vocabularies (p. 2) is illustrated.

6. Adverbs in ē and ě.

The proportion of these adverbs in H. and J.—both as to the number of words used and the frequency of their occurrence—is nearly as 3 is to 2.

In H.:¹ damnose S. 2. 8³⁴, gelide A. P. 171, laeve Ep. 1. 7³² are ἀπαξ λεγόμενα. Sinistre A. P. 452 appears to have been first used by H.

In J.: here 3^{21, 2}. This form is used by Plautus, Cicero, Horace, Ovid, Seneca, and Martial—who employs it 5 times, heri twice.³ Quint 1. 7. 22: Here nunc e littera terminamus. H. uses here S. 2. 8². Neither H. nor J. uses heri. ferme 8⁷³, 13²³⁶. Ferme appears in all periods of the language. It is entirely avoided by Caesar, Nepos, and Cicero in the Orations. Sallust uses it once. Livy and Velleius are very fond of ferme. Curtius uses it 4. 5. 1, 9. 8. 30, and elsewhere, Pliny the Elder 2. 39. 106. Tacitus uses ferme 28 times, fere but 5 times. Ferme is not found in the Dialogus—in which work fere occurs 4 times.⁴ Schmalz states that ferme was a favorite word with the late writers.⁵ In poetry I find ferme only in Plautus and Terence, Lucr. 3⁶³, and J. 8⁷³, 13²³⁶.

³ For examples and further information see Neue II, p. 685.

⁴ Lexicon Taciteum of Gerber and Greef, p. 456. Draeger, however, holds that fere occurs in Tacitus only once—Dialogus 16. See his Syntax und Stil des Tacitus, p. 9.

⁵ Müller's Handbuch der klassi. Altertumswissenschaft, II, p. 554.

7. Adverbs in ò and ö.

The proportion of this class of adverbs in H. and J. is as 3 is to 2, as regards the number of words used, and nearly the same as to the number of times the words occur. No word of this termination needs comment.

8. *Adverbs in -tenus.*¹

H. uses: hactenus S. 1. 2¹²³, 4⁶³. quadam . . . tenus Ep. 1. 1³². quatenus S. 1. 1⁶⁴, 3⁷⁶, 2. 4⁵⁷. Quadamtenus is used by Pliny the Elder and Gellius (Dr. I 127). Other examples of tmesis in H. are: inque vicem S. 1. 3¹¹¹, 2. quo . . . cumque Ep. 1. 1¹⁵, quo . . . circa S. 2. 6⁹⁵.

J. uses only quatenus 12¹⁰².

9. Adverbs with prepositional prefix.

H. uses: abhinc Ep. 2. 1³⁶. dehinc S. 1. 3¹⁰⁴, A. P. 144. deinde S. 1. 5³⁷, 6¹¹⁹, 2. 8⁵. insuper S. 2. 4⁶⁸. in . . . vicem S. 1. 3¹⁴¹. protinus S. 2. 5²¹, Ep. 1. 12⁵, 18⁶⁷. posthac S. 1. 1²¹, 2. 2¹⁰⁷, 3²⁹⁷.

postmodo S. 2. 6²⁷. subinde S. 2. 5¹⁰³, Ep. 1. 8¹⁵.

Abhinc appears to be a prose word. I find no other example in poetry except those in Plautus, Terence, Lucr. 3⁹⁶⁷, and Pacuv. apud Caris. 2, p. 175. Postmodo,³ used by H. Odes 1. 28³¹, avoided by Vergil, and a favorite word with Ovid, appears not to occur in silver poetry. Subinde S. 2. 5¹⁰³, Ep. 1. 8¹⁵ appears to be used first by H. and Livy.⁴

J. uses deinde—12 times. posthac 7¹⁸, 8⁷, 14¹⁵⁸. protinus—7 times.

10. Prepositional Adverbs.

H. uses: ante S. 1. 1³⁷, 2. 3¹³⁵. circum S. 2. 8⁷. contra—9 times.

extra Ep. 2. 1³¹. insuper S. 2. 4⁶⁸.

intra Ep. 2. 1³¹.⁵ post—8 times.

² Tmesis in this word is common in the poets.

⁴ Dr. I 126, Wilkins to H. Ep. 1. 8¹⁵.

⁵ Bentley's emendation Ep. 2. 1³¹ from nil intra est oleam to nil intra est olea now finds general acceptance.

super S. 1. 2⁶³, 2. 7⁷⁸, Ep. 2. 2³³. supra Ep. 2. 2¹⁶⁵. ultra—6 times.

I find no other example of extra or intra used adverbially in poetry except Ovid F. 6¹⁹¹—extra. Cicero does not use extra adverbially in his Orations. Nepos does not use it; Caesar only B. C. 3. 69. 4. Intra is very rare until post-Augustan times. It occurs, however, in Sallust, and Bellum Hispaniense 35.

J. uses: ante—9 times. contra—6 times. infra 3²⁰⁴. post 6³⁰⁴. ultra—5 times.

H. uses of this class 10 adverbs occurring 30 times, J. 5 occurring 22 times.

11. Other Adverbs.

Auctius H. S. 2. 6³ is ἀπαξ λεγόμενον. dulce H. Ep. 1. 7²⁷, 2. 2⁹. Cf. grande, suave, and triste below. This poetical use of neuter adjectives in e as adverbs seems to have had its origin with Catullus (51⁵, 61⁷), and is most probably a Graecism. J. has only one example of this usage, which occurs not infrequently in Statius. For its range in Latin consult Neue (Berlin, 1890) II 591–2. grande (J. 6³¹⁷) occurs elsewhere Ovid Rem. Am. 375, Pers. 5⁷, Stat. Th. 12⁶⁸⁴, S. 3. 1²⁰, 130. Cf. dulce above. perraro H. S. 2. 5⁵⁰ and persaepe H. S. 1. 2⁸², 3¹⁰, A. P. 349 are prose words. Where persaepe might have been employed, J. uses saepius 6⁵⁵⁷.

quandoquidem (J. 1¹¹², 10¹⁴⁶, 13¹²⁹) is not found in H. suave H. S. 1. 4⁷⁶. Cf. dulce above. triste H. S. 1. 8⁴¹. Cf. dulce and suave above. ubivis H. S. 1. 4⁷⁴. I find this word elsewhere only in Terence and Cicero.

II.—As TO USE.

1. Adverbs of Place.

alio, H. 2.¹ J. o. S. 2. 1³² usquam decurrens alio. 2⁵⁵ nam frustra vitium vitaveris illud, si te alio pravum detorseris.

eo, H. 9, J. o. a) Thither. Ep. 2. 2¹⁰ ibit eo quo vis. b) To that degree, to such a point. Ep. 2. 1¹²⁶ eo rem venturam ut . . . c) Causal. S. 1. 1⁵⁶, 3³⁰ rideri . . . eo quod . . . toga defluit. 9⁵⁵, 2. 3¹²⁰ eo quod. A. P. 222. For this use of eo see under inde, p. 42.

Eo is a prose word. I find no example in poetry except those in Plautus, Terence, and the S. and Ep. of H. Instead of eo causal, J. uses hinc and inde. See under hinc c) and inde a).

foras, H. 2, J. o. Ep. 1. 5²⁵ ne fidos inter amicos sit qui dicta foras eliminet. 7³¹.

foris, H. 2, J. 2. In H.: S. 1. 10³⁰ patriis intermiscere petita verba foris. Schütz states, in his note on this passage, that foris in this sense, "from without, from abroad," is found in Plautus often. It occurs Lucr. 4¹⁰³², 5⁵⁴³, 6¹⁹, Cic. Or. 2. 39. 163, 2. 40. 173, Inv. 1. 11. 15, Tusc. 3. 3. 6, Nep. Dion 9. 6. A foris occurs Pliny 17. 24. 227.

hac H. 2, J. o. S. 2. 2⁶⁴ hac urget lupus, hac canis. Ep. 2. 2⁷³ hac fugit canis, hac ruit sus. In post-Augustan Latin I find hac only Phaedr. Fab. Nov. 27. 8, Pliny Ep. 2. 17. 18, 5. 6. 19, and Stat. Th. 6²²⁴.¹ Instead of hac . . . hac J. uses illinc . . . hinc, inde . . . hinc. See under hinc in J. e).

hic, H. 17, J. 25. In H.: a) Of time, "here," "at this point." S. 1. 9⁷ hic ego, 'pluris hoc,' inquam, 'mihi eris.' 9²⁶, 2. 8¹⁶.² b) In this, in this thing. S. 1. 10⁸ et est quaedam tamen hic quoque virtus. c) ubi . . . hic. S. 2. 3²²¹ ergo ubi prava stultitia, hic summa est insania.

In J.: a) Here, at this point (of time), a) above. 1¹⁵⁰ dices hic forsitan 'unde . . . ' 15⁶⁴ hic gaudere libet quod non violaverit ignem. b) Among them. 2^{110, 111} hic nullus verbis pudor . . . , hic turpis Cybeles . . . libertas. c) In anaphora. 2^{110, 111}.

hinc, H. 14, J. 19. In H.: a) With pendere. S. 1. 4⁶ hinc omnis pendet Lucilius. Hand quotes Varro R. R. 3. 1. 10 de quibus exponendis initium capiam hinc. Cf. Schütz on S. 1. 4⁶. b) From this, from these. S. 1. 2⁷⁹ nihil hinc diffindere possum. 2. 2¹²⁷ quantum hinc imminet?, i. e. from my possessions. A. P. 318. c) Of cause, source. Ep. 1. 19⁴¹ hinc illae lachrimae. This passage being a quotation, it may be said that H. avoids this usage. d) = tum, postea. S. 1. 9⁴⁴ 'Maecenas quomodo tecum?' hinc repetit. Hinc in this sense occurs Pers. 3¹⁰³, and in Pliny the Elder, Tacitus, and other silver writers.

In J.: a) For ex his. 15⁷⁷ labitur hinc quidam. b) From this, above. 7¹¹³ veram deprendere messem si libet, hinc centum patrimonia causidicorum. c) Of cause or source, c) above. 1¹¹⁹ quid facient comites quibus hinc toga, calceus hinc est?, i. e. from the sportula. 1¹⁴⁴ hinc subitae mortes. 6⁴⁶³, 10²⁷⁸, 12¹²⁷, 14⁸². This use of hinc occurs first in Ter. And. 99; then in Cicero, Vergil, Livy, and (more frequently) post-classical authors. Dr. II 185. d) *From this time, after that.*¹ 6²⁹⁵ nullum crimen abest . . . ex quo paupertas Romana perit, hinc fluxit ad istos et Sybaris colles. This usage is found in Vergil, and in post-Augustan prose and poetry. Hand III, p. 91, where see examples. e) hinc atque inde, inde . . . atque hinc, inde . . . hinc, etc. 1⁶⁵ hinc atque inde patens, i. e. on both sides. 8¹⁹⁵ finge tamen gladios inde atque hinc pulpita poni, i. e. balance death against the stage. 10⁴⁴ illinc . . . hinc. 14¹³ inde . . . hinc, from this quarter . . . from that. 15⁵¹ inde . . . hinc, on one side . . . on the other. Hinc occurs in no similar combination in H. The usage belongs to all periods. Hand III, p. 87 fol. f) In anaphora. 6²⁹⁵, 11¹²⁷. One of the characteristics of J.'s declamatory style is his frequent use of anaphora.² In this figure he uses also these adverbs: hic 1¹¹⁰, iam 3¹⁸⁸, 4⁵⁶, inde 8¹⁰⁵, nondum 6¹⁵, qua 7²²³, quando, 1⁸⁷, quo 8¹⁴², sic 6²²⁹, tanquam 4¹⁴⁷, tantum 7³¹, tunc 3²¹⁴, unde 2²⁷. Weise, Vindiciae Juvenalianae, p. 46.

¹ The Vulgate reading Tac. Agr. 28 is no longer accepted. In both the passages from Pliny the MSS vary.

huc, H. 9, J. 3. H. uses huc in the Ep. only A. P. 462.

In J.: 3³⁰⁸ sic inde huc omnes tanquam ad vivaria currunt; huc here=to Rome.

ibi, H. o, J. 7. H. uses ibi only Od. 2. 6²².

In J.: a) =among them at that time. 6³²⁴ O quantus tunc illis mentibus ardor concubitus; . . . nil ibi per ludum simulabatur. b) =in that case. 8⁶⁴ sed venale pecus Coryphaei posteritas . . . si rara iuga victoria sedit: nil ibi maiorum respectus. 11¹⁷⁶.

I find no reason for H.'s avoiding ibi; nor can I discover any substitute for it.

ibidem, H. o, J. 1. 5⁴⁰ tibi non committitur aurum, vel si quando datur, custos adfixus ibidem, i. e. at once, immediately. Ibidem in this sense is found Fin. 1. 6. 19 and elsewhere in Cicero, and the word is classical in both prose and poetry.

illic, H. 4, J. 17. In H.: With no definite antecedent. S. 1. 9⁴⁸ non isto vivimus, illic . . . modo, i. e. at the house of Maecenas.

J.'s use of adverbs of place derived from personal pronouns is widely different from that of H. This difference may be summarily stated to be that J. departs further from the original local meaning of these words. It is well illustrated in the two authors' use of illic.

In J.: a) = among them then. 1⁹¹ posita sed luditur area, proelia quanta illic . . . videbis. Cf. ibi a) above. b) = in that case. 15⁹¹ sed res diversa, sed illic fortunae invidia est. Cf. ibi b) above. c) With no definite antecedent. 3⁹⁸ nec tamen Antiochus nec erit mirabilis illic aut Stratocles, i. e. in Greece—to be inferred from the mention of Greek actors. 2¹⁵⁹, 3¹⁷⁰, 6⁴¹⁰, 13¹⁷¹, 15¹². d) Not essential to the meaning, but adding dramatic force. 5⁷³ finge tamen te inprobulum; superest illic qui ponere cogat. 6³⁶ pusio . . . exigit a te nulla iacens illic munuscula. Here too, as in c) above, there is no definite antecedent. e) illic . . . hic . . . illic. 15⁷. f) In that, in it. 10³²³ sive est haec Oppia sive Catulla deterior, talos habet illic femina mores.

illinc, H. 1, J. 4. In J.: 10⁴¹ illinc . . . hinc. See under hinc in J. e).

illuc, H. 5, J. 3. In H.: a) = to that point—in the narrative. S. 1. 1¹⁰⁸ illuc unde abii redeo. 2²³ si quis nunc quaerat quo res haec pertinet, illuc:¹ dum vitant . . . With this sentence of H. cf. J. 15⁷² a deverticulo, repetatur fabula. b) To the following, to this. S. 1. 3³⁸ illuc praevertamur amatorem quod amicae turpia decipiunt.

H. uses huc literally 8 out of 9 times of its occurrence; illuc twice out of 5 times.

In J.: 12⁵³ tunc adversis urgentibus illuc reccidit ut malum ferro submitteret.

inde, H. 8, J. 40. In H.: a) From this cause. S. 1. 1¹¹⁷ inde fit ut . . . Cf. eo fit . . . ut S. 1. 1⁵⁶, quo fit S. 2. 1³². Lagergren, De Vita et Elocutione Plinii, p. 169, doubts whether inde causal occurs before the silver period. It is manifestly causal in the above passage from H., as also Cic. Mur. 12. 26, Livy 1. 32. 2, 25. 15. 16.² b) From that time, after that.³ S. 1. 8³ olim truncus eram . . . deus inde ego. Inde in this sense occurs Ter. Heaut. 1. 1², Cic. Arch. 1. 1, and in Livy and post-Augustan writers. For examples consult Hand III, p. 366. Cf. inde ab Plaut. Trin. 2.

¹For examples of illuc in this sense consult Hand III, pp. 217-18. The usage belongs to all periods.

²Cf. Hand III, pp. 364 and 370. Hand seems wrong in citing Ov. M. 2¹⁵². See also Krebs II, p. 659.

For this usage see under inde in J. b). d) From it, out of it. S. 1. 8²⁸ cruor in fossam confusus ut inde manis elicerent.

In J.: a) From this cause, a) above. 1¹⁶⁸ inde irae et lachrimae. 3¹¹³ scire volunt secreta domus atque *inde*¹ timeri. Parataxis with inde here expresses what H. would have expressed with ut and the subjunctive—hypotaxis.¹ Juvenal sometimes uses parataxis with marked rhetorical effect, e. g. 3¹⁰⁰, 8²⁵, 13²²⁷, 6³³². The above use of inde, occurring very rarely in classical times (see under inde a) in H.), and not found in Curtius, occurs 30 times in Pliny the Younger and 22 times in Tacitus.² b) = tum, postea. 6²¹² inque vices equitant ac luna teste moventur; inde domos redeunt. For examples of inde in this sense in classical and post-classical prose and poetry consult Hand III, pp. 368–9. Cf. Kühnast, Livianische Syntax, p. 348. "Ενθεν is similarly used in Greek. c) From it, from him, or from them. Cf. d) in H. 6⁶² cuneis an habent spectacula totis quod securus ames quodque inde excerpere possis. 6⁶¹², 9²⁸, 10¹⁴⁰. d) 9²⁰ deprehendas animi tormenta et gaudia; sumit utrumque inde habitum facies. e) inde . . . si. 6⁵⁰⁰ inde fides artis . . . si longo castrorum in carcere mansit. f) inde . . . quod. 15³⁶ inde furor vulgo quod numina vicinorum odit uterque locus. g) inde atque hinc, hinc atque inde, hinc . . . inde, inde . . . atque alia parte. See under hinc e). Weise, Vindictiae Juvenalianae, p. 53, mentions the following cases of ellipsis, "concitato dicendi generi maxime consentanea," where clauses are introduced by hinc, inde, and unde in J.: 1¹⁴¹ hinc subitae mortes. 15⁵¹. 1¹⁶⁶ inde irae et lacrimae. 3²³⁶, 6⁵⁶⁰, 7¹⁰³, 9²⁷, 15^{35, 48}. 1¹⁵⁰ unde ingenium par materiae? 2¹²⁷, 6²⁸⁶, 9⁸, 15¹⁰⁸.

Instead of inde causal H. uses: a) eo. For examples see under eo c), and with eo quod cf. inde . . . quod f) above. b) hoc. S. 1. 1⁴⁶ non tuus hoc capiet venter plus ac meus. 3⁹³, 6^{41, 52, 110}, 9⁸, 10⁷. J. does not use hoc. H. does not use hoc in the Ep., and eo only A. P. 222, employing ideo and idcirco instead.³ Eo and hoc are allowed in the S. of H. because of the prose character of those compositions.¹ To express causal relation H. uses also ob hanc rem S. 1. 3⁹¹, 4⁹³. ob id factum Ep. 2. 2³². ob hoc A. P. 393.

³ Of these two words only idcirco occurs in the S.—1. 4⁴⁵.

interius, H. o, J. 1. 11¹⁵ interius si attendas. Cf. Cic. De Or. 3. 49. 190 ne insistat interius.

introrsum, H. 2, J. o. S. 2. 1⁶⁵ introrsum turpis. Ep. 1. 16⁴⁵ introrsum turpem.

In the sense of intus, introrsum occurs already Caes. B. G. 7. 27. For other examples see Hand III, p. 444.

intus, H. 7, J. 1. In H.: S. 2. 3¹¹⁵ si positus intus Chii . . . mille cadis. So 3¹⁴², A. P. 389.

From two examples of his use of intus H.'s fondness for philosophical reflection² comes out: S. 2. 1⁵² cornu taurus petit; unde nisi intus monstratum? A. P. 108.

istic, H. 1, J. 1. In H.: Ep. 1. 14³⁷ non istic obliquo oculo mea commoda quisquam limat. Istic here="There where you are."

In J.: 3²⁹ cedamus patria: vivat Artorius istic et Catullus. Istic here has a contemptuous force.

istinc, H. 2, J. 1.³ In H.: S. 1. 4¹³¹ quis ignoscas vitiis teneor: fortassis et istinc largiter abstulerit longa aetas. Other examples of istinc for ex+the ablative are Plaut. Ps. 4. 7⁶⁸, Rud. 4. 4³³, Cat. 76¹¹. Cf. inde d) in H. and hinc b) in H. Ep. 1. 7³² si vis . . . effugere istinc.

In J.: 8¹⁰⁵ inde Dolabella atque istinc Antonius, inde Verres referebant . . . spolia. Cf. hinc e) in J.

The only examples of istic or istinc I find in post-Augustan Latin, other than the examples from Juvenal, are Luc. 7⁵⁹² (istic) and Mart. 1. 19¹ (istinc). J.'s use of them is a mark of his forcible style.

nusquam, H. 4, J. 2. In H.: a) S. 2. 5¹⁰² ergo nunc Dama sodalis nusquam est?, i. e. is he gone? For this usage consult Hand IV, p. 349, and cf. Cic. Tusc. 1. 6. 11. b) With a verb implying motion. S. 2. 7²⁹ nusquam es . . . vocatus ad cenam. Usquam is so used S. 1. 1³⁷, 2. 1³¹, 7³⁰. This usage belongs mainly to the conversational style, and naturally occurs oftenest in the Comedians and Cicero's Letters.¹

obiter, H. o, J. 2. a) 3²⁴¹ obiter leget aut scribet—i. e. on the way. b) 6⁴⁸¹ verberat atque obiter faciem linit—i. e. incidentally, en passant.

Obiter appears to have come into literature from the language of the people. The only author to use it before Petronius is Laberius the mimographer. Pliny the Elder employs it frequently, and it occurs in Seneca, Quintilian, and Appuleius.²

passim, H. 2, J. o. Ep. 2. 1¹¹⁷ scribimus indocti doctique poemata passim—i. e. promiscue, indiscriminately. Passim in this sense is rare: Tib. 2. 3⁷², Just. 43. 1. 4.

peregre, H. 2, J. o. S. 1. 6¹⁰² rusve peregre exirem. Ep. 1. 12¹³.

Peregre is a prose word. It occurs nowhere in poetry except in the Comedians and H.

porro, H. 4, J. 4. In H.: a) Literally "farther." Ep. 1. 13¹⁸ nitere porro. This usage is not common. It is found oftenest in ante-classical Latin. Livy 1. 7. 6 porro agere, 9. 2. 8 porro ire. b) Furthermore, next. S. 1. 3¹⁰¹, Ep. 1. 6³⁴. c) Furthermore, moreover. Ep. 1. 16⁶⁵ qui cupiet metuet . . . : porro que metuens vivit liber . . . non erit.

In J.: In all four cases porro=furthermore, moreover, c) above. 3¹²⁶, 6²⁴⁰ utile porro filiulam . . . producere turpem.

post, H. 8, J. 1. In H.: a) S. 1. 6⁶¹ nono post mense. b) primum . . . post, prius . . . post. A. P. 76 querimonia primum, post etiam inclusa est . . . sententia. A. P. 111 format . . . nos natura prius ad omnem fortunarum habitum: . . . post effert animi motus . . .

In J.: Of place, behind or from behind. 6³⁰¹ Andromachen a fronte videbis, post minor est. H. does not use post thus.

Instead of post b) in H., J. uses deinde—which occurs only three times in H., tunc, or inde. (See under deinde.) I find in J. no equivalent expression for post paulo, occurring three times in H. (J. uses paulo ante 6²²⁷, 9¹¹⁴.)

procul, H. 7, J. 6. In H.: Joined with the ablative without a preposition. S. 1. 6⁵² prava ambitione procul. For this usage see under simul d) below.

In J.: 14⁴⁵ procul, a procul inde. Weidner quotes Ov. M. 15⁵⁸⁹ procul, O procul este profani.¹ So ékās in Greek; ékās ékās δotis αλιπός (Kallim. in Apoll. 2).

prope, H. 16, J. 1. H. uses prope=almost 10 times. For "almost" J. uses fere 6²⁴², 11¹¹², paene 3 times. H. uses fere thus only S. 1. 3⁹⁶, paene 6 times. For "near" H. uses prope 6 times. J. uses thus prope 9¹⁰⁶, iuxta 11¹⁶⁵. With stantem prope H. S. 2. 5⁴² and propius stes A. P. 361 cf. J. 3¹¹ substitit ad . . . arcus.

qua, H. 4, J. 1. H. uses qua in anaphora S. 1. 2⁵⁰ qua res, qua ratio suaderet. Other adverbs used in this figure by H. are: aeque Ep. 1. 1²⁵, clare Ep. 1. 16⁵⁰, saepe S. 1. 3¹¹⁻¹², Ep. 1. 17⁵⁵⁻⁵⁶, 19¹⁹⁻²⁰, sic Ep. 2. 1¹⁷⁹.

J. uses qua in anaphora 7²²³. For a list of other adverbs used by J. in this figure see under hinc f) in J. quatenus, H. 3, J. 1. H. uses quatenus only in its causal sense: S. 1. 1⁶⁴ iubeas miserum esse, libenter quatenus id facit. 3⁷⁶, 2. 4⁵⁷. So also J. 12¹⁰². Quatenus causal appears first Lucr. 2⁹²⁷. Then it does not occur till H. and Ov. M. 8⁷⁸⁶, 14⁴⁰, T. 5. 5²¹. The first example from prose appears to be Val. Max. 9. 11, and it is found, though still rarely, in Quintilian, Tacitus, Pliny, Suetonius, and later.²

quo, H. 30, J. 6. In H.: a) Wherefore, for which reason. S. 2. 1³² quo fit ut. b) To what purpose?, for what? S. 1. 1⁷³ nescis quo valeat nummus? 6²⁴, Ep. 1. 5¹².

In J.: J. uses quo=to what purpose?, for what? 4 times. 8⁹ effigies quo tot bellatorum, si luditur alea pernox? 8¹⁴²⁻⁴, 14¹³⁵, 15⁶¹.

Anaphora occurs 8¹⁴²⁻⁴.

H. uses quo=whither 25 times, J. twice.

quorsum, H. 5, J. 0. To what purpose?, for what? S. 2. 3²⁰¹, 7¹¹⁶ quorsum est opus? Cf. Cic. Red. ad Quir. 2. 5, Leg. 1. 1. 4, Brut. 85. 292.³

This usage belongs to silver Latin.²

alias, H. 3, J. o. Alias means "at another time" in H. S. 1. 4⁶³, 9⁷², Ep. 2. 1¹⁷.

aliquando, H. o, J. 3. In all three examples from J. aliquando has the meaning nonnunquam, interdum. In this sense it occurs in Cicero and is common in post-classical Latinity.

ante, H. 2, J. 9. In H.: S. 2. 3¹³⁶ non ante . . . dementam actum . . . quam . . . ferrum tepefecit. J. does not thus separate ante and quam.

In J.: a) Limited by paulo. 6²²⁷ ornatas paulo ante fores. 9¹¹⁴. b) ante . . . deinde. 6¹¹⁷ dominum iubet ante feriri, deinde canem. This use of ante for primum is post-Augustan.³ c) With an adjective. 3¹¹¹ filius ante pudicus. This usage is rare. In Tacitus it occurs only An. 14. 7. 8 ante ignaros. Instead of adverbial ante H. uses prius, which occurs in H. 10 times, in J. 3 times. Of course neither author uses antēā.

brevi, H. 1, J. o. Ep. 1. 3⁹ brevi venturus in ora.

breviter, H. o, J. 1. 12¹²⁵ omnia soli . . . Pacuvio breviter dabit.

dehinc, H. 2, J. o. a) = tum, postea. S. 1. 3¹⁰⁴ donec verba . . . invenere; dehinc absistere bello coeperunt. This usage is poetical and post-Augustan: Verg. A. 1^{131, 256}, 5⁷²², 6⁶⁷³, Ov. F. 6⁷⁸⁷. For post-Augustan examples see Hand II, p. 230. b) = deinde. A. P. 144 non fumum exfulgore, sed ex fumo dare lucem cogitat, ut speciosa dehinc miracula promat. Dehinc is thus used Epod. 16⁶⁵. Dehinc in this sense is not common. The only pre-Augustan example appears to be Sall. Cat. 32 primum . . .

³ For examples from Pliny and Celsus see Hand I, p. 376.

dehinc. Then Verg. G. 3¹⁶⁷, Sen. Quaest. Nat. 3²⁹⁶, Sil. 8⁴⁷³, Suet. Aug. 49.

dein, H. 2, J. 1. H. S. 1. 3¹⁰¹, 5⁹⁷, J. 15⁵³. Both poets use dein as a monosyllable. Deinceps H. uses as a dissyllable S. 28⁸⁰.

deinceps, H. 1, J. 0. S. 2. 8⁸⁰. I find no other example of deinceps in poetry until Prudentius.

deinde, H. 3, J. 12. Where deinde might have been employed H. uses: a) tum S. 1. 5⁸⁴, 7²⁸, 2. 3³⁰, 8³⁶, 78, 90. b) tunc S. 2. 2¹²¹, A. P. 103. J. also uses tunc thus 6⁶⁹⁷, 10²⁶⁷, 12⁵³, 13¹⁰⁷. c) postmodo S. 2. 6²⁷. d) dehinc A. P. 144. e) inde S. 2. 6⁹⁸. J. also so uses inde 6³¹², 11⁴⁷. f) post S. 1. 4⁸⁸, A. P. 76 primum . . . post, A. P. 111. g) post hunc, post hanc, post hoc, post haec, post hos. S. 1. 6¹²², 2. 2¹²³, 8³¹, Ep. 1. 8¹³, 2. 1¹⁷³, 2²⁸, A. P. 278, 401. J. also uses post hunc, etc., thus: 1³³, 2⁶², 5¹¹⁶, 6⁴⁹⁹. h) subinde Ep. 1. 8¹³ primum . . . subinde. i) denique Ep. 1. 7⁶⁸, 2. 2⁵⁸.

denum. H. 1, J. 0. S. 1. 5²³. The post-Augustan poets appear to have avoided denum.¹ H. does not use it in the Odes, but Vergil uses it freely, and it occurs in Ovid.

denique, H. 15, J. 0. a) At all events, in any case. S. 1. 2¹³³ ne nummi pereant aut puga aut denique fama. Ep. 2. 2¹²⁷.² b) = deinde. Ep. 1. 7⁶⁸ ille Philippo quod non mane domum venisset, denique quod non providisset eum. c) In the end, at last. A. P. 267 an omnis visuros peccata putem mea tutus et intra spem veniae cautus? vitavi denique culpam, non laudem merui.

Where denique might have been used, J. sometimes employs tandem, which occurs 11 times, in H. 7 times. Denique is found in Martial.

dudum, H. 0, J. 2. For iam dudum. 3¹²⁹ cum praetor lictorem impellat et ire praecipitem iubeat, dudum vigilantibus orbis. 10²³³ dudum sedet illa parato flammeolo. This usage is very rare.³ The only examples I find, other than the above, are Cic. Att. 4. 5 and Pliny, H. N. 19. 1. 2.⁴

hodie, H. 9, J. 6. In H.: a) At the present day. S. 2. 2⁴⁶, Ep. 2. 1¹⁶⁰. b) Expressing impatience. S. 2. 7²¹ non dices hodie quorsum haec tam putida tendant, furcifer? Ep. 1. 7¹⁹ ut libet:

² For other examples of this usage see Hand, II 270.

³ iam dudum is now read Ter. Heaut. 4. 5¹⁰.

haec porcis hodie comedenda relinques.¹ Cf. Ter. Eun. 4. 4¹⁵ possumne ego hodie ex te exsculpere verum? Phor. 5. 3²². This usage belongs to the style of conversation. c) hodie, cras. Ep. 1. 16³³ qui dedit hoc hodie, cras auferet.

In J.: a) As a) above. 13⁴⁷. b) hodie . . . here . . . cras. 3²³ res hodie minor est here quam fuit, atque eadem cras deteret exiguis aliquid.

in H. and in J. is due to J.'s great fondness for the uses a) and a') above. This is a mark of his vivid, excited style. So 4¹³⁸ noverat ille luxuriam imperii veterem noctesque Neronis iam medias. 6³⁰², 13⁴⁴, and elsewhere.

interea, H. 2, J. 14. The disproportion in the use of this word by H. and J. may be accounted for by its use in J. with the force of an adversative particle, while H. does not so employ it. Thus 1¹³⁵ caulis miseris atque ignis emendus; optima silvarum interea pelagique vorabit rex. 2¹³⁷ interea tormentum ingens nubentibus haeret; 5¹²⁰, 6²³⁷, 461, 508, 10³⁴², 11¹⁴, 183, 14¹³⁸. As to this usage, occurring already in Cic., consult Hand, III, p. 416; Krebs, I, p. 703 fol.

modo, H. 18, J. 19. In H.: a) modo . . . interdum, modo . . . saepe, saepe . . . modo. S. 1. 9⁹ ire modo ocius, interdum consistere. 2. 7⁷, S. 1. 10¹¹ modo tristi, saepe iocoso. 2. 7⁹ saepe . . . modo. This sequence is found mainly in H., Ovid, and silver prose-writers.¹ To the examples from classical prose-writers cited by Wölfflin, Archiv, II 252 fol.,² add Nep. Att. 20. 2. b) Only, just—with an imperative. S. 2. 3²⁷⁶ *adde cruorem stultitiae atque ignem gladio scrutare modo, inquam.*³

In J.: a) modo . . . nunc . . . nunc. 14⁸⁶. Cf. the same sequence, Ovid, T. 1. 2²⁷, and modo . . . nunc, M. 13⁹²¹. b) 15¹¹⁹ quis modo casus impulit hos? The explanation of Mayor and Weidner for modo here seems unsatisfactory. The word serves to call the attention in a transition, as the Greek δῆ, our 'now,' and iam H. Ep. 2. 1⁸⁶. See under iam c) above. c) Limiting a verbal noun. 2⁷³ modo victor. Cf. signator falso 1⁶⁷, and sic i) in H.

olim, H. 23, J. 19. In H.: a) *At times, oftentimes.*⁴ S. 1. 1²⁵ ut pueris olim dant crustula blandi doctores. Ep. 1. 10⁴². This use of olim is ante-classical and poetical. It occurs in Plautus, Lucil. 130 (Lach.), Vergil, H. Od. 4. 4⁵, Epod. 3¹, and in Ovid. b) Hereafter, some day. S. 1. 4¹³⁷ numquid ego illi imprudens olim faciam simile? 6⁸³, 2. 5²⁷, Ep. 1. 3¹⁸, A. P. 386. H. uses olim of an event which has occurred during his life-time, S. 1. 6⁴⁷, 54. Cf. also S. 1. 3⁷⁵, 2. 3²⁰.

² In his paper Was heist bald . . . bald?

³ Fritzsche, Schütz and Palmer place a period after scrutare and throw modo inquam with the next sentence. I prefer to read as above. So Orelli and Kiessling.

obruit olim gloria paucorum. b) Hereafter, some day, b) above. 14²²⁵. c) = iamdudum. 4⁹⁶ sed olim prodigio par est cum nobilitate senectus. 6⁴², 90 famam contempserat olim. I find no example of olim in this sense before Seneca and Lucan.¹ Tacitus uses olim thus 16 times. For examples from other writers see Mayor on J. 4⁹⁶, Lagergren De Vita et Elocutione Plinii, p. 170, and Hand IV, pp. 370–371. Similarly πάλαι is used in Greek.²

protinus, H. 3, J. 7. In H.: S. 2. 5²¹ tu protinus unde divitias . . . ruam die, augur. Protinus meaning at once, immediately,³ is not common in prose until Livy. Cic. Inv. 2. 15. 20, Caes. B. G. 2. 9, 5. 17, B. C. 1. 14.

In J.: In every example⁴ in J., protinus means straightway, at once. With 14¹²³ sunt quaedam vitiorum elementa; his protinus illos imbuat cf. H. Ep. 2. 1¹²⁷ os tenerum pueri . . . poeta figurat, torquet ab obscaenis iam nunc sermonibus. To express “at once,” “immediately,” H. uses continuo S. 1. 2¹¹⁸, 6²⁹, 100, 2. 3¹⁶⁰, 8²⁹. J. also uses continuo, 6⁴⁹³, 13¹⁹¹, 14²⁴³.

quando, H. 17, J. 23. H. uses quando interrogative but 3 times, J. 14 times. H. does not use quando = when except as interrogative,⁵ J. only 12⁵⁵. J. uses si quando 3¹⁷³, 5⁴⁰, 8⁸⁰, 12²³. Instead of si quando H. uses quandocumque, quandoque, or quotiens. See under those words.

quandocumque, H. 3, J. 0. S. 1. 9³³ garrulus hunc quando consumet cumque. As regards this indefinite use of quandocumque for aliquando cf. Ov. M. 6⁵⁴⁴, 2. 3. 1⁵⁷, and the note of Schütz on H. 5. 1. 9³³. Other examples of tmesis will be found under Adverbs in -tenus.

quandoque, H. 1, J. 3. In H.: A. P. 359 indignor quandoque bonus dormitat Homerus. For this use of quandoque, occurring already in Cic., see Krebs, II 405. Cf. also Mützell and Vogee on Curt. 7. 10. 9, Roby's Latin Grammar 2290.

In J.: In J. quandoque means only some day, of the future. 2⁸² foedius hoc aliquid quandoque audebis amictu. 5¹⁷², 14⁵¹. In this sense the word is mainly post-Augustan, only two examples being quoted before silver Latin—Cic. Fam. 6. 19. 2, Livy 21. 3. 6.

¹ Verg. G. 4⁴²¹, it is more natural to take olim as ofttimes. So Koch, Conington, and Papillon.

⁴ 3¹⁴⁰, 4⁴⁸, 7¹⁶⁵, 11¹⁹⁰, 13¹⁷⁶, 14¹²³, 16²⁷.

⁵ S. 2. 2⁴² is a possible exception, but see Kiessling's note.

quoad, H. 1, J. 0. S. 2. 3⁹¹. Quoad here is a monosyllable.¹ The above is the only undisputed example of quoad in poetry after Plautus and Terence, so far as I can discover.²

quondam, H. 7, J. 7. In H.: a) From time to time, sometimes. S. 2. 2⁸² hic tamen ad melius poterit transcurrere quondam, sive diem festum rediens advexerit annum, seu³ . . . Ep. 1. 18⁷⁸ fallimur, et quondam non dignum tradimus. It is questionable whether Cicero uses quondam thus. Div. 1. 43. 98 and Fam. 2. 16. 2 are quoted, but consult Wilkins' note on H. Ep. 1. 18⁷⁸. The word is found in this sense, however, H. Od. 2. 10¹⁸, Verg. A. 2⁶⁷, Ov. M. 9¹⁷⁰, 8¹⁹¹. So the Greeks occasionally used πότε.⁴ b) Limiting a verbal noun. Ep. 2. 2¹⁶⁷ emptor . . . quondam. Cf. A. P. 443 nullum ultra verbum. Ep. 2. 1²³ sic fautor veterum. Od. 3. 17⁹ late tyrannus. For the attributive use of adverbs in Latin consult Dr. I 131 fol.; Reisig, 150 and note; Overholthaus, Syntaxis Catullianae capita duo, p. 15; Uri, Quatenus apud Sallustium sermonis Latini plebei aut cotidiani vestigia appareant, p. 121; Riemann, Etudes sur Tite-Live, p. 245; Dr., Syntax und Stil des Tacitus, p. 8; Kraut, Ueber Syntax und Stil des jüngerer Plinius, p. 25.

quotiens, H. 3, J. 19. The large use of this word is characteristic of J. He employs it instead of ubi or quandocumque. See under those words.

raro, H. 4, J. 0. S. 1. 1¹¹⁷, 4¹⁸, 2. 2³⁸, 3¹. J., in common with the Latin poets generally, uses the corresponding adjective instead of raro.⁵ I find no example of raro in post-Augustan poetry except Mart. 1. 93⁶, 5. 39⁵, 14. 213¹. Among the classical poets; Lucr. 6⁴⁴⁸, 1186, Hor. Od. 3. 2³¹, Verg. Cat. 7¹⁴, Ov. M. 13¹¹⁷. J. 8⁶³ si rara iugo victoria sedit, 5¹⁵, 10¹⁸, 13⁸.

repente, H. 0, J. 2. H. uses subito 4 times, J. only 3¹⁶⁹.

semel, H. 14, J. 5. In H.: a) Once, once for all. S. 1. 4³⁶ et quodcumque semel chartis illeverit. 2. 1²⁴, 7⁷¹, Ep. 1. 2⁶⁹, 7⁹⁶, 10¹⁷, 17⁵⁸, 18⁷¹, A. P. 331, 452. b) Once, only once. Ep. 2. 2¹⁴ semel hic cessavit. A. P. 468. c) ut semel, si semel, cum semel. S. 2. 1²⁴

² The usually accepted reading Lucret. 2⁸⁵⁰, 5¹²¹³, 1433 is quoad, but Lachmann reads quo ad.

³ The Lexica take quondam here as = some day — of the future.

⁴ Cf. Haupt on Ov. M. 9¹⁷⁰.

⁵ Cf. Krebs II, p. 431.

saltat Milorius ut semel icto accessit ferveo capiti. 2. 5⁸¹ si semel, 7⁷¹ cum semel. Ep. 1. 10¹⁷, A. P. 331.

In J.: a) Once, once for all, a) above. 13²⁴². b) Once, only once, b) above. 4¹⁴³ et semel aspecti litus dicebat echini. c) At once, once for all. 6³²¹ ut quidquid subiti . . . discriminis instat in tunicas eat et totum semel expiet annum.

simul, H. 27, J. 0.¹ a) With me, in my company. Ep. 1. 10⁵⁰ excepto quod non simul esses cetera laetus. Kiessling remarks that this use of simul is colloquial, and compares Cic. Att. 6. 2. 8 scribis morderi te interdum quod non simul sis. b) simul primum. Ep. 2. 2⁴⁹ unde simul primum me dimisere Philippi. This combination is rare. Dr. II 601 pronounces it everywhere questionable. It is found Livy 6. 1. 6, 35. 44. 5. Simul ac primum is used by Cicero Verr. 2. 13. 34, and by Suet. Jul. 30, Nero 43. c) In anaphora. S. 2. 2⁷³. d) As a preposition. S. 1. 10⁸⁶ simul his. Simul with the ablative occurs first in H.; then Verg. A. 5³⁵⁷, 11⁸²⁷; Ov. T. 5. 10²⁹; Sen. Tro. 1045; Sil. 3²⁶⁸, 5⁴¹⁸; Tac. An. 3. 64, 4. 55, 6. 9, 13. 34. Procul with the ablative occurs first in H.; then Ov. Pont. 1. 5⁷³, 4. 9¹²³, and often in Livy and silver writers.² e) For simul atque. S. 1. 1³⁶, 2. 2⁷³, 7⁴, 3²²⁶, 6³², 11⁴, Ep. 1. 6¹¹, 7⁹⁰, 10⁸, 19¹⁰.

H.'s large use of simul atque—5 times, simul ac—5 times, and simul=simul atque—10 times, is noteworthy. Instead of these expressions, J. uses simply cum or ut with the indicative. So 1¹⁴², 160, 3¹²², 133, 4⁶⁰, 63, and elsewhere. Where simul might have been written he uses pariter 6²⁰ duae pariter sorores. 6³¹⁵, 328, 441, 576, 10⁵⁰⁹, 13²⁰⁶. Where simul cum might have been written he uses simply cum. So 2¹⁵⁸, 3⁶³, 6¹⁶⁸, 171, and elsewhere. With H. S. 1. 10⁸⁶ simul his (Pollio, Messala, and others) cf. J. 3⁹⁹ cum molli Demetrius Haemo. As J. uses simul not at all, so he employs una but once, 15²⁴³. Martial uses una only once (1. 96¹¹), and simul only 10. 35¹⁷, 11. 58¹⁰.

tandem, H. 7, J. 11. In H.: Ep. 1. 17² quamvis . . . scis quo tandem pacto deceat maioribus uti.³ Wilkins states, in his note on this passage, that no parallel has been adduced for this use of tandem in a dependent question.

² Krebs II, p. 352 ff.

³ Schütz thinks that tandem here has the force of doch, nur, and serves merely to fix the attention.

tum, H. 15, J. 3. In H.: a) Of future time. S. 1. 2⁹⁹, 2. 5⁶⁶ tum gener hoc faciet. b) Then, thereupon. See under deinde a).

In J.: a) tum cum 7¹⁰⁸. b) tunc . . . tum in anaphora 6³²⁷.

tunc, H. 3,¹ J. 34. In H.: Thereupon, then. S. 2. 2¹²¹ bene erat . . . pullo atque haedo; tunc pensilis uva secundas . . . ornat mensas. A. P. 103. Cf. deinde b). This use of tunc is rare until after the Augustan period. Cic. Verr. 2. 2. 52, Fam. 3. 5. 3, 3. 6. 2, Livy 3. 70. 8, 7. 8. 1, 45. 25. 1. Tunc used thus is not found in Caesar or Vergil.

In J.: a) As=thereupon, then. 6⁶⁰⁷, 10³⁶⁷, 12⁵³, 13¹⁰⁷. See under tunc in H. b) tunc . . . tum, in anaphora. 6³²⁷. c) tunc cum, tunc . . . cum. 13⁴⁰, 16³²⁸. d) tunc . . . quotiens. 14²¹. e) Emphatic, "at that very time." 2³⁰ adulter . . . qui tunc leges revocabat amaras . . . ipsis Veneri Martique timendas.

ubi (temp.), H. 29, J. 1.² In H.: ubi + ablative absolute. S. 2. 8¹⁰ his ubi sublati, puer . . . mensam pertersit. In some cases in which H. would have used ubi, J. uses quotiens, which occurs in H. only 3 times, in J. 19 times.

ut (temp.), H. 10, J. 2.³

3. Adverbs of Manner and Degree.

adeo, H. 4, J. 15. In all four examples from H.⁴ adeo is used normally—limiting an adjective. In no case is it accompanied by usque or any other particle. Nowhere does it follow its word.

In J.: a) Limiting an adjective but following its word. 5¹²⁹ quis vestrum temerarius usque adeo . . . ut . . . 6⁵⁰ paucae adeo. 6¹⁸² uis deditus autem usque adeo ut . . . 10²⁹⁷ rara est adeo. 13⁵⁹, 15⁸². This position of adeo, in the sense in which it is here used, is not common. Ter. Heaut. 5. 1¹², Verg. A. 1^{565, 5}. b) Introducing a clause—the conjunctive use. 3²⁷⁴ adeo tot fata quot illa nocte patent vigiles . . . fenestrae. 11¹³¹ adeo nulla uncia nobis est eboris.

¹The MSS of H. favor tunc, S. 2. 2¹²¹, 3³⁰⁴, A. P. 103. So Keller and Holder read, and Keller states in his Epilogomena zu Horaz, note on S. 2. 3³⁰⁴, that here the archetype undoubtedly had tunc. Schütz follows the MSS in all three cases. Palmer writes tum S. 2. 2¹²¹, tunc 2. 3³⁰⁴. Kiessling writes tum in all three cases, holding that H. does not use tunc before consonants. See his note on Epod. 17¹⁷.

⁴ S. 1. 1¹³, 7⁷, Ep. 1. 1³⁹, 2. 1⁵⁴.

⁵The former reading, Livy 4. 54. 4 avidissimo adeo populo, has been corrected to avidissimo ad ea populo.

13¹⁸¹ quantulacumque adeo est occasio sufficit irae.¹ This conjunctive use of adeo—where Cicero would have used tantum—is found first Verg. G. 2²⁷².² It is quite common in Livy, and occurs in Curtius, Quintilian, Tacitus, and later, in Lactantius. c) With a verb. 6⁵⁹ adeo sennerunt Jupiter et Mars? 12²⁶, 14²³⁵.

The large use of adeo in J. is to be accounted for by his fondness for ending a thought with a clause such as we introduce by so, so great. For this purpose he uses adeo, or some case of tantus, -a, -um. Examples of such a clause introduced by adeo are: 6⁵⁰ auratam Iunoni caede iuvenecam, si tibi contigerit capitis matrona pudici. paucae adeo Cereris vittas contingere dignae, quarum non timeat pater oscula. 10²⁹⁷, 12²⁶, 13⁵⁹, 14²³⁵, 15⁸², and elsewhere. Examples of such a clause introduced by some case of tantus, -a, -um are: 6⁵⁵ tantum artes huius . . . possunt. 6⁶²⁶, 7⁸⁴, 10¹⁴⁰, 238, 306, 13^{58, 75}, 14²⁶⁴. The only cases of tantus, -a, -um so introducing a clause in H. are Ep. 2. 1²⁰³ tanto cum strepitu ludi spectantur, and A. P. 243 and 244.

alioqui, H. 2, J. o. S. 1. 4⁴, 6⁶⁶. This word appears to have been introduced into literature by H., and is used in poetry by him only.³

After H. alioqui is used by Livy, and is a favorite word in silver Latin.⁴

aliter, H. 1, 5 J. 4. In J.: a) Otherwise, unless this be true. 3²⁸¹ ergo non aliter poterit dormire? b) Differently, in the contrary manner. 6¹¹ quippe aliter tunc orbe novo . . . vivebant homines. c) non aliter . . . quam. 6⁶¹⁹, 7²²⁰.

Instead of aliter H. uses a) haud ita S. 2. 5¹⁸. b) secus A. P. 14⁹. c) alioqui, for which see above.

bene, H. 43, J. 11. In H.: a) *With an adjective, = valde.*⁶ S. 1. 3⁶¹ bene sano. 9⁴⁴ bene sanae. H. so uses male S. 1. 3^{31, 45}, 4⁶⁶,

¹ Here Mayor and Weidner take adeo as = immo. As this use of the word is not found elsewhere in J., and it seems quite natural to take it as = "to such an extent is it true that"—which use is found elsewhere in J.—I prefer so to take it.

² The passage Cic. Off. 1. 11. 37 is bracketed by the recent editors as a later interpolation. So Orelli and Baiter, Stickney, and C. F. W. Müller.

³ Cf. Kiessling to S. 1. 4⁴. The line Lucret. 3⁴¹⁴ is rejected by Lachmann, while Monroe reads there alioqui. Cf. also Reisig, N. 431 b.

⁴ Cf. Ribbeck, Lat. Part., p. 20; Hand, I, p. 235 fol.

⁶ Porphyryon to H. Od. 3. 24⁵⁰ bene pro valde positum, ut apud Ennium frequenter.

9⁶⁵, 2. 5⁴⁹. For this usage in Latin consult Wölfflin, Archiv, I, p. 95 ff., and the references of Schmalz, Ueber den Sprachgebrauch des Asinius Pollio, p. 43. b) bene est, bene erat. S. 2. 2¹²⁰ bene erat . . . pullo atque haedo. 6⁴, 8⁴, Ep. 1. 1⁸⁹, 12⁵ si ventri bene, si lateri est. Cf. Odes 3. 16⁴³ bene est. This usage belongs mainly to the style of conversation. c) S. 2. 21⁷¹ valeas bene. d) A. P. 428 clamabit enim 'pulchre, bene, recte.'

In J.: 10⁷² 'bene habet: nil plus interrogo.' This same expression occurs Cic. Mur. 6. 14, Prop. 5 (4). 11⁹⁷, Livy 8. 6. 4, 9. 1, Stat. Th. 11⁵⁵⁷, 12³³⁸.¹ Cf. Mayor on J. 10⁷². In the conversational style of an author so fond of his ease as H. we should naturally expect a much larger use of a broad and for the most part colorless word like bene than in the vigorous and direct style of J. Male occurs 28 times in H., 4 times in J.

benigne, H. 3, J. o. a) In declining an offer, "I thank you." Ep. 1. 7¹⁶ 'at tu quantum vis tolle.' 'benigne' . . . 'ut libet.' 7⁶². This usage occurs in Plautus and Terence and Cic. Verr. 3. 85. 196. Schütz cfs. καλῶς in Greek.² b) Freely, fully. Ep. 1. 17¹¹ si prodesse tuis pauloque benignius. So Od. 1. 9⁶.

frustra, H. 8, J. o.³ Frustra is used by almost every Latin poet, including Lucan, Statius, Silius and Martial. I find no substitute in J. He uses nequiquam 8²⁰⁵.

humane, H. 1, J. o. Ep. 2. 2⁷⁰ intervalla vides humane comoda. Humane is here used in irony, and has the force of probe, admodum. Cf. the notes of Schütz and Kiessling.

ita, H. 23, J. 4. In H.: a) ita ut. S. 1. 2²⁰ vix credere possis quam sibi non sit amicus, ita ut pater ille . . . Cf. Caes. B. G. 1. 12 flumen est Ara . . . incredibili lenitate, ita ut . . . and 1. 38. b) In answering, "Yes." S. 2. 7² 'Davus-ne?' 'ita, Davus.' Cf. Ter. Eun. 4. 4⁵⁴, And. 5. 2⁸, Cic. Or. 2. 10. 43. c) In adjuration. S. 2. 2¹²¹ ac venerata Ceres, ita culmo surgeret alto, explicuit . . . Similarly H. uses sic Od. 1. 3¹, S. 2. 3³⁰⁰. d) haud ita, non ita, followed by an adjective or adverb. See under haud a) below. e) atque ita porro. S. 1. 3¹⁰¹ pugnis, dein fustibus, atque ita porro pugnabant armis.

In J.: a) To mark a direct quotation. 2²⁸ atque ita subridens, 'Felicia tempora . . .' 13⁹¹. b) With illative force, "then," "so then." 6²²² 'pone crucem servo.' 'meruit quo crimine servus ...?' '... o demens, ita servus homo est?'

That H. uses ita so much oftener than J. is partially to be accounted for by the fondness of the former for similes and comparisons. The colloquial element in H., too, has its influence here; so b) and c) in H. above. H. uses ita twice for tam, which usage is not found in J.

item, H. 2, J. 0. S. 1. 3⁷⁷, A. P. 90. Item is not freely used in poetry. Besides the examples just quoted from H., I find the word only in Plautus and Terence, Cat. 61³⁶, Lucr. 5⁷⁵¹, Verg. G. 1¹⁸⁷, Culex 402. Item is doubtful for Tacitus, but occurs in Pliny the Elder, Quintilian and Suetonius.

longe, H. 9, J. 8. In H.: a) With the superlative. S. 1. 5³ longe doctissimus. 5⁸⁹, 6⁹². H. uses multo with a superlative twice. S. 1. 5³⁹, 2. 3⁸². Only multo was used to strengthen the superlative until Cicero, who used longe first Rosc. Am. 12. 33. Then for a considerable time Cicero uses longe and multo almost equally. In his latest writings multo is the exception. Caesar uses only longe, Nepos only multo. Sallust uses multo 4 times, longe once (Jug. 9. 2). Livy, Pliny the Elder, and Quintilian use both multo and longe with the superlative. Only multo survives in the Romance languages; showing that it was used rather than longe in the language of daily life.¹ H. nowhere uses longe with a comparative; notice, however, S. 2. 5⁷³ vincit longe. b) longe longeque. S. 1. 6¹⁸. See under Doubling of Adverbs.

In J.: a) Of time. 7¹¹ longe ferrata domus. Longe temporal occurs several times in Martial. b) With a comparative. 6²¹⁰ longe minus. This usage occurs Hirtius, B. A. 46. 4, B. H. 7. 5, Sall. Hist. 3. 61. 9 D., Verg. A. 9⁵⁵⁶, Ov. M. 4²¹⁵, and in Livy, Vel- leius, Valerius Maximus, Curtius, Seneca, Quintilian, and other silver writers.² I cannot parallel the example from J. of longe with the comparative in any silver poet except Phaedrus. J. has no example of a superlative limited by longe, multo or multum.

male, H. 28, J. 4. In H.: a) With an adjective, = valde. S. 1. 3³¹ male laxus. 3⁴⁵, 4⁶⁶, 9⁶⁵, 2. 5⁴⁵. For this usage see under bene a), and Schmalz, Ueber den Sprachgebrauch des Asinius Pollio, p. 44. b) *With negative force.*¹ S. 2. 3¹³⁷ male tutae mentis. 4³¹ male creditur. 5⁴⁵, 6⁸⁷, Ep. 1. 19³, 20¹⁵. For the disproportion in the number of times male occurs in H. and J. cf. the remark on bene, p. 24.

² Wölfflin, Lateinische und romanische Comparison, pp. 39-40.

multo, H. 7, J. 1. J. 13¹⁹⁶. Where multo might have been written J. sometimes uses longe or multum. See under those words. For multo with the superlative see under longe in H. a) and in J. (end).

multum, H. 12, J. 5. In H.: With an adjective. S. 2. 3¹⁴⁷ multum celer. 5⁹², Ep. 1. 10³ multum dissimiles. 2. 2⁶². For this usage consult Wölfflin, Latcinische und romanische Comparison, p. 8. It is vulgar in its origin, and frequent in Plautus. Reisig, N. 402^a; Krebs, II, p. 101. It occurs in Cic. Off. 1. 109, Agr. 3. 13.

In J.: a) With an adjective, as above. 10³ multum diversa. b) With the comparative. 10¹⁹⁷ multum hic robustior. 12⁶⁶. This usage is not common, and is not found in Cicero or Caesar.² Plaut. Most. 3. 2¹³⁷, Luc. 2²²⁵, Quint. 10. 1. 94, Sil. 13⁷⁰⁸.³

nequaquam, H. 2, J. 0. S. 2. 4⁴⁸, Ep. 2. 1²⁰.

Nequaquam is a prose word. Besides the above examples I find in poetry only Plaut. Cas. 3. 2⁴, Trin. 2. 4¹⁶.

nequiquam, H. 2, J. 1. H. S. 2. 7²⁷, Ep. 1. 3³². J. 8²⁰⁵. Nequiquam is almost entirely avoided by silver prose-writers. Only Quintilian and Tacitus use it once each: Quint. 8. 2. 2, Tac. Hist. 2. 24. Among silver poets Persius uses it 3 times (2⁵¹, 4¹⁴, 50), Lucan once, Valerius 14 times, Silius 22 times, Statius 16 times. Martial does not use the word, employing frustra 11 times. Wölfflin, Archiv, II, pp. 7-10.

nimis, H. 6, J. 1.⁴

nimum, H. 7, J. 0.

pariter, H. 4, J. 11. J. uses pariter where simul might be expected. See under simul, p. 22. J. does not use simul.

parum, H. 3, J. 0.

prave, H. 4, J. 0. S. 2. 3⁸⁷ sive ego prave seu recte hoc volui. Ep. 1. 1¹⁰¹ prave sectum . . . unguem. 2. 1²⁶⁶, A. P. 88 prudens prave. Cf. recte and the last remarks on that word.

pulchre, H. 2, J. o. S. 2. 8¹⁹ pulchre fuerit tibi. A. P. 428 clamabit enim, 'pulchre, bene, recte.'

qui, H. 15, J. o. H. uses qui as = quo modo in every case, never as = quare, or in any of the other uses so common in early Latin.¹ a) With a verb. S. 1. 1¹ qui fit . . . ut . . . 1¹⁰⁸ illuc redeo qui nemo ut avarus se probet.² 2. 3^{108, 260}. Ep. 1. 6⁴⁴, A. P. 462. b) With an adjective. S. 2. 3²⁴¹ qui sanior ac si . . . ? 3^{273, 311}, 7¹⁰⁵. Ep. 1. 6⁴², 16⁶³ qui melior servo, qui liberior, sit avarus . . . non video. c) Alone. S. 1. 3¹²⁸ sutor tamen est sapiens. qui? d) In anaphora. Ep. 1. 16⁶³.

I find no substitute of J. for qui. He uses quo . . . modo once (6²⁷³). Qui is a prose word. I find no clear example in classical or silver poetry beyond those in the S. and Ep. of Horace, Pers. 1⁵⁶, Phaed. 1. 1⁷. Caesar uses qui only B. C. 2. 32⁹, Nepos only Ar. 3. 2. In silver prose I find only Quint. 5. 13. 45, 6. 1. 7, 7. 3. 34, and Pliny, 7. 5. 189.

recte, H. 33, J. 1.³ H. uses recte broadly. a) S. 1. 4¹³ scribendi recte. A. P. 309. b) S. 2. 2¹⁰⁶ uni nimirum tibi recte semper erunt res, i. e. things will be prosperous with you. 3¹⁶². c) Ep. 1. 1⁶⁶ rem facias; rem si possis recte; si non, quocumque modo rem. d) Ep. 1. 2⁴¹ recte vivendi. 6²⁹, 8⁴, 16¹⁷. e) Ep. 1. 7³ recte . . . valentem. 16²¹. f) Ep. 1. 8¹⁵ ut valeat . . . ut placeat iuveni percontare; si dicet 'recte' . . . g) A. P. 428 clamabit enim 'pulchre, bene, recte.' The large use of recte in H. is partially to be accounted for by his conversational style. So e), f), g) above. H. uses recte 4 times in the Odes, whereas the word appears to be rare elsewhere in poetry. Beyond the examples in Plautus, Terence and H., I find only Ov. Pont. 2. 3¹³, Mart. 7. 70², J. 9¹¹⁸.

secus, H. 1, J. o. A. P. 149. Among the silver poets I find only one example of secus—Luc. 10⁴⁴⁷.

sic, H. 60, J. 26. In H.: a) 'As follows,' of a direct quotation. S. 1. 1⁶⁵ ut quidam . . . dives populi contemnere voces sic solitus: populus me sibilat . . . 2. 1⁵¹, 6⁷⁹, 8⁶⁰, Ep. 1. 17¹⁸, 2. 2³. b) Thus, in the above words, of a direct quotation. S. 1. 4¹²⁰. c) For adeo. S. 2. 8³ 'ut . . . iuvit te cena?' ' . . . sic ut mihi numquam . . . fuerit melius.' d) sic . . . si. Ep. 1. 7⁶⁹ sic ignovisse putato me tibi, si cenas hodie mecum. e) In adjuration. S. 2. 3³⁰⁰ stoice, post damnum sic vendas omnia pluris, qua me stultitia insanire putas? For this usage see Kiessling on Od. 1. 3¹. It survived in Italian.¹ f) sic . . . ut, for tantum . . . quantum. S. 2. 8³⁶ parochi . . . nil sic metuentis ut acris potiores. g) In drawing a moral conclusion. Ep. 1. 10³⁹ sic qui paupertatem veritus potiore metallis libertate caret dominum vehet. Cf. Ep. 1. 9¹⁰. h) For TAM, limiting an adjective. S. 1. 3¹⁹ nil fuit umquam sic impar sibi. 5⁶⁹, Ep. 2. 1¹⁷⁹ sic leve, sic parvum est animum quod laudis avarum subruit. i) Limiting a verbal noun. Ep. 2. 1²³ sic fautor veterum. Cf. quondam b) and modo (in J.) c). j) In anaphora. Ep. 1. 18¹¹⁻¹², 2. 1¹⁷⁹.

In J.: a) sic ut = on condition that. 8⁷⁵ sed te censeri laude tuorum Pontice noluerim sic ut nihil ipse futurae laudis agas. 8¹⁹⁶. Cf. sic . . . si, d) above. b) ergo cavebis . . . ne tu sic Creticus aut Camerinus. c) 13¹⁹¹ continuo sic collige quod . . . e) "As follows," of a direct quotation. 14²¹¹. f) In the above words—of a direct quotation. 15²⁴. g) In anaphora. 6²²⁹.

The large difference in the number of times sic occurs in H. and J. is partially to be attributed to the fact that H. is very fond of simile, while J. uses this figure much less frequently.

sicut, H. 2, J. 6. In J.: a) As for instance. 6¹⁰⁷ multa in facie deformia, sicut attritus galea mediisque in naribus ingens gibbus. 7²⁰⁴. b) Inasmuch as, since. 15⁹⁸ huius . . . miserabile debet exemplum esse cibi, sicut modo dicta mihi gens . . . hostibus ipsis pallorem ac maciem . . . miserantibus . . . membra aliena fame lacerabant. Only two other examples of sicut in this sense are quoted—Plaut. Epid. 2. 2⁸⁷ and Mil. 4. 1²⁸.²

tam, H. 13, J. 25. H. uses tam with a verb only once. Ep. 1. 7¹⁸ tam teneor dono quam si . . . J. does not so use tam.

Instead of tam with an adjective or adverb, H. uses ita twice,³ tantum three times,⁴ adeo four times,⁵ and sic three times.⁶ J. also uses adeo where tam might have been employed. See examples under adeo above.

² Pers. 1. 3⁵⁷ is doubtful. Tyrrell on Mil. 4. 1²⁸, after Langen, denies that sicut can be causal. Ribbeck, Der echte und der unechte Juvenal, p. 48, cites this causal use of sicut as pointing to the spuriousness of the Fifteenth Satire.

In J.: a) 1¹³¹ cuius ad effigiem non tantum meiere fas est. b) In anaphora. 7³¹.

H. uses tantum . . . quantum twice—S. 1. 8¹⁷, 2. 5⁸⁰. J. does not use this combination. H. uses tantum "only" 7 times, before its word 3 times—S. 1. 4⁷ mutatis tantum pedibus. 2. 3^{140, 306}; J. 24 times, before its word 7 times.

ut (modi), H. 7, J. 0. In H.: a) Interrogative. S. 2. 5¹⁸ ut ne tegam spurco Damae latus? 8¹, Ep. 1. 3¹², 18¹⁶. This usage, like the following, belongs mainly to the style of conversation. b) Exclamatory. S. 2. 6³³ ut tu semper eris derisor! 8⁶², Ep. 1. 19¹⁹. Instead of ut J. uses quam. 10⁸⁴ quam timeo victus ne poenas exigit Ajax.

utcumque, H. 0, J. 1. 10²⁷¹ exitus ille utcumque hominis. Utcumque here = at any rate, in any case. This usage occurs first Livy 29. 15. 1. Then Ovid, Curtius, Quintilian, Pliny the Younger, Tacitus, and Suetonius¹ use it.²

valde, H. 2, J. 0. Ep. 1. 9⁶ videt ac novit me valdius ipso. A. P. 321.

The only example of valde I find in poetry, other than those in Plautus and the Epistles of Horace, are Cat. 68⁷⁷ and Mart. 3. 44⁵.

velut, H. 14, J. 6. In H.: S. 2. 8⁹⁴ ut nihil omnino gustaremus velut illis Canidia adflasset. Velut here = velut si. A. P. 245.

In J.: For velut si. 4⁵⁹, 6³⁶³, 13²¹⁶, 13²²⁸. J. does not use velut si. veluti, H. 9, J. 1.³ In H.: For velut si. S. 2. 3⁹⁸. Martial uses veluti only once (11. 36³).

forsit, H. 1, J. 0. Forsit S. 1. 6⁴⁹ appears to be ἀπαξ λεγόμενον.⁴

forsitan, H. 0, J. 6. J. uses forsitan with the indicative. 14²⁹⁵ hac forsitan ipsa nocte cadet. This construction is poetical (Ovid, Propertius) and post-Augustan. Riemann, Études sur Tite-Live, p. 292.

fortassis, H. 2, J. o. S. 1. 4¹³¹, 2. 7¹⁰. Elsewhere in poetry I find fortassis only Plaut. As. 2. 4⁸⁶, Bacch. 4. 4²⁰. Caesar and Nepos do not use the form; Cicero in the Orations only Cluent. 144 and 201.

temere,¹ H. 6, J. o. a) non temere, not at random, not easily. S. 2. 2¹¹⁶ non ego temere edi luce profesta quicquam praeter holus. Schütz here explains non . . . temere by non facile. Palmer compares οὐ ῥαδίως. Ep. 2. 1¹²⁰ vatis avarus non temere est animus. 2¹³. b) At random, easily—without the negative. A. P. 160 iram colligit ac ponit temere. This usage is found in all periods, but is rare in classical prose. Krebs, II, p. 587. As H. uses non temere, J. uses haud facile. 3¹⁴⁴ haud facile emergunt quorum virtubus obstat res angusta domi.

5. Comparative with the force of the positive.

ocius, H. 3, J. 4. In H.: S. 1. 9⁹ ire modo ocius, interdum consistere. 2. 7^{34, 117}.

6. Doubling of Adverbs.

iam iam, H. o, J. 1. 6⁶²⁸ iam iam privignum occidere fas est. Iam iam occurs in all periods, and in prose as well as poetry. Hand, III, p. 155 ff.

longe longeque, H. 1, J. o. S. 1. 6¹⁸ quid oportet nos facere a volgo longe longeque remotos. Schütz remarks in his note on this passage that longe longeque is good Latin. Cic. Fin. 2. 21. 68; Ov. M. 4³²⁵; Flor. 1. 45. 4; Gell. 14. 1. 20; Digest 4. 4. 39.²

unde unde, H. 1, J. o. S. 1. 3⁸⁸ qui nisi . . . nummos unde unde extricat, i. e. undecumque. As to this usage see Orelli on S. 1. 3⁸⁸.

7. Other Adverbs.

equidem, H. 4, J. o. Concessively, "it is true," "to be sure." S. 2. 1⁷⁹ equidem nihil hinc diffindere possum, sed tamen . . . Ep.

²Schütz cites Lucr. 3⁶⁹, but Lachmann seems right in separating the words there.

2. 1⁶⁹. H. uses equidem only with the first person singular. So Terence,¹ Cicero, Caesar, Vergil, Quintilian, both the Plinys, and Tacitus. Plautus, Varro, Sallust, Persius, Lucan, Curtius, Justinus and Ausonius do not regard the supposed derivation (ego + quidem) in their use of equidem.²

I find no example of equidem in any poet contemporary with Juvenal. Tacitus uses the word only 5 times (Agr. 33. 14, Dial. 7. 1, 21. 1, 26. 15, An. 3. 12. 19).

haud, H. 15, J. 8. In H.: a) With adverbs—in litotes. S. 2. 2⁴⁶ haud ita pridem. 5¹⁸ haud ita Troiae me gessi. Cf. A. P. 254 non ita pridem and S. 2. 6¹ non ita magnus. Cicero has no example of haud ita. Caesar, Nepos, Vergil and Livy use both haud ita and non ita (rare in Livy).³ Ep. 1. 7⁴⁰ haud male. b) With adjectives—in litotes. S. 1. 1³⁵ haud ignara. Ep. 2. 2¹²⁸ haud ignobilis. c) With pronouns—an emphatic negative. S. 1. 4⁷⁷ haud illud quaerentes num . . . 2. 6¹¹⁵ haud mihi vita est opus hac. This usage is colloquial. Ter. And. 2. 1³⁶ haud ego, 3. 2¹⁵, Hec. 2. 3⁵ haud pol me quidem. Plaut. Capt. 3. 4⁹¹ haud istuc. d) With a causal clause. Ep. 1. 8¹ haud quia grando contuderit vitis . . . sed quia . . . e) With verbs. S. 1. 9⁵⁶ and 2. 1¹⁷ haud mihi dero. 1³⁹ haud petet.

H. uses non sine 5 times, never haud sine.⁴ Haud occurs only once in the Odes and Epodes of H. (Epod. 1³²).

In J.: a) With an adverb—in litotes. 3¹⁶¹ haud facile. b) With an adjective—in litotes. 6¹ haud similis. 8¹⁹⁸ haud mira. 11¹⁷, 13²⁰⁰ haud impunitum. 14¹³⁶, 16⁸. c) In an exhortation. 7⁹³ haud tamen invidae rati quem pulpita pascunt. I cannot parallel this use of haud. Cf. Hand, III, p. 35.⁵

plerumque, H. 6, J. 1.⁶ The silver poets seem to have avoided this word, not frequent in the Augustan poets. I find no other example than J. 11⁴⁶, Phaedr. 1. 29¹, 3. 16². Where plerumque might have been employed, J. uses ferme 8⁷³, 13²³⁶, fere 10²³, 14¹⁷³. H. also uses fere in this sense.

This use of utpote with a participle and adjectives, instead of the more common construction with the relative, is not usual. Nepos Hann. 2. 3 puerulo me utpote non amplius novem annos nato.

Utpote occurs several times in Plautus; Cat. 64⁵⁶; Nep. Hann. 2.

¹ Cf. the similar use of simul and procul in H.

² Livy 44. 5. 6 ad has been inserted by the editors.

³ Other examples are quoted Dr. I, p. 598.

3; Sall. Cat. 57; Asin. Pol. apud Cic. Fam. 10. 32. 4. It is found in Cicero's Orations only Phil. 5. 30, and Terence, Caesar, Vergil do not use it. I find no example after H. except Prudent. Apoth. 903 C.

III.—SUBSTITUTES FOR ADVERBS.

1. Adjectives.

In the case of many words expressing time, place, and more especially manner, it is sometimes most difficult to determine whether an adjective is more natural in language or an adverb. In such cases the Latin often employs an adjective, whereas an adverb is regularly used in English. In a number of the examples quoted below it is impossible to say with confidence whether adverb or adjective would be expected. In some cases I have been influenced by the position.

In H.: a) nocturno certare mero, putere diurno Ep. 1. 19¹¹, 2. 2⁷⁹, A. P. 269. hesternis vitis S. 2. 2⁷⁸, 6¹⁰⁵. qui nocturnus . . . legerit S. 1. 3¹¹⁷, 2. 6¹⁰⁰, Ep. 1. 19¹¹, 2. 2⁷⁹, A. P. 269. venit obvius illi adversarius S. 1. 9⁷⁴, 2. 6⁵¹. omnis in hoc sum Ep. 1. 1¹¹. haec (voluptas) rara cadat S. 1. 2⁴⁰, 7²⁷, A. P. 259. nauta . . . stertit . . . supinus S. 1. 5¹⁹. ibam . . . nescio quid nugarum meditans totus in illis S. 1. 9², 2. 7⁸⁶. vesperatinumque pererro saepe forum S. 1. 6¹¹³, 2. 4¹⁷, Ep. 1. 6²⁰.

b) qui se vixisse beatum dicat S. 1. 1¹¹⁷, 3¹⁴², 2. 6⁹⁶. INDEX, WITH NUMBER OF TIMES THE ADVERBS OCCUR.

Only words of Part II are included here, and those of Part I which show striking disproportion in the number of times they occur, or else, in case of a failure to appear in one author, where some explanation has been offered for their non-appearance.
